A cartoon illustration of a dog with brown and white fur, a blue collar, and a red heart tag, looking surprised and excited at a pink rotary phone that is ringing. The phone is on a table with a white cloth. In the background, there is a window with a white curtain, a framed picture of a person, a framed picture of a bird, and a fishbowl with a yellow fish. The dog is looking at the phone from the left side of the frame. The phone has a red receiver and a base with three colored buttons (yellow, pink, green). A red button on the base is labeled "This is Granny...".

Where's Grandma? She's late.
Let's call her on the phone.

5. For each new page, press the
Story arrow and then make choices.

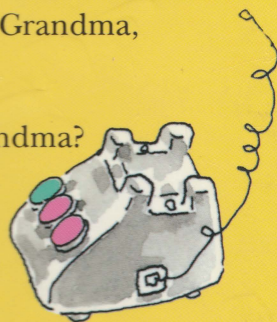

Where's Grandma? She should be here by now. Knowing Grandma, she's probably making stops along the way. But where is she stopping? And what will she bring? I wonder where she is right now.

Let's see if we can find her. We can telephone around town to see how far Grandma has come. Where should we call? Minerva's Service Station? Mountain Market? The Firehouse? How about Rosie's Posies? How about Grandma, herself?

Hello...Grandma?
